Black magic

Royal Dornoch in Scotland has often been referred to as the most northerly great golf course in the world. Perhaps that will no longer be the case in a few years' time, when the Black Sand golf course in Iceland is ready for opening

46

Making the earth move

The greatest design on the best property will not make for a good golf course if the build is mismanaged. How should architects and constructors work together to create great golf on time and on budget?
