

PHOTO: Courtesy of Kemper Sports

GOLF COURSE ARCHITECTURE

Golf Course Architecture is published with the support and guidance of the European Institute of Golf Course Architects, the European Golf Course Owners Association, the American Society of Golf Course Architects and the Golf Environment Organisation.

European Institute of Golf Course Architects

The European Institute of Golf Course Architects represents Europe's most qualified and experienced golf course architects. The Institute's aims are to enhance the status of the profession, increase opportunities for its members and educate future golf course architects.
www.eigca.org

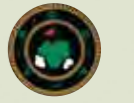

European Golf Course Owners Association

The mission of the European Golf Course Owners Association is to provide services to support golf course owners, represent their interests on a European level and improve the golf business on a European level.
www.egcoa.eu

American Society of Golf Course Architects

Formed in 1946 by Donald Ross, Robert Trent Jones and others, ASGCA is the professional organisation of North American golf course architects. The 180 architects who have achieved membership in the prestigious group have designed some of the world's greatest courses.
www.asgca.org

Golf Environment Organisation

Since its launch in 1993 as the European Golf Association Ecology Unit, GEO has established partnerships with Europe's major golf organisations and been a catalyst across the sector. It brings together scientists and industry leadership figures who recognise the need for action.
www.golfenvironment.org

Printed in Great Britain by The Manson Group, Reynolds House, St Albans, AL3 6PZ

Golf Course Architecture is published by Tudor Rose, Tudor House, 6 Friar Lane, Leicester, LE1 5RA, England. ISSN 1745-3585

© 2009 Tudor Rose Holdings Ltd. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be stored or transmitted or reproduced in any form or by any means, including whether by photocopying, scanning, downloading onto computer or otherwise without the prior written permission from Tudor Rose Holdings Ltd.

The publisher reserves the right to accept or reject advertising material and editorial contributions. The publisher assumes no liability for the return of unsolicited art, photography or manuscripts.

Views expressed in Golf Course Architecture are not necessarily those of the publishers. Acceptance of advertisements does not imply official endorsement of the products or services concerned. While every care has been taken to ensure accuracy of content, no responsibility can be taken for any errors and/or omissions. Readers should take appropriate professional advice before acting on any issue raised herein.

It is assumed that any images taken from sources which are widely distributed, such as on the Web, are in the public domain. It is recognised though that since such images tend to be passed freely between sources it is not always possible to track the original source. If copyrighted material has ended up being treated as public domain due to the original source not being identified please contact the publisher, Tudor Rose.

44

Lord of the links

In the decade since the opening of Bandon Dunes, developer Mike Keiser has become involved with a string of high-profile golf projects across the globe. As Old Macdonald, the fourth course at the Bandon resort, is readied for opening, Mike Kraker spoke to Keiser and some of the golf figures who know him best to find out what makes him tick

54

Land of opportunity

Italy ought to be one of the world's great golf destinations, but political hostility and social exclusion have stifled development in the country. With a number of major resorts coming on stream though, are things starting to change?

10 Tee Box

A recent spate of course construction in China – including two IMG courses, Tom Doak's nascent Island Club and Rick Jacobson's Moon course – demonstrates the region's potential for growth, if only the demand continues. Plus, a full round-up of all the latest golf developments

25 The Player

Toby Ingleton catches up with Gary Player at Sunningdale GC to discuss design, the environment and his latest project in Bulgaria

28 The Pioneer

From Woodhill Spa to West Sussex via South Africa, Jonathan Gaunt explores the legacy of the Lincolnshire colonel SV Hotchkiss

36 James Edwards

A very personal tour of the best of the Surrey and Berkshire heathlands

41 Libor Jirasek and Michael Terech

Following the Velvet Revolution in 1989, there has been a renaissance of golf in the Czech Republic

43 Simon Gidman

Discovering golf in Ecuador

62 On Site

Can David Kidd and his team conquer severe environmental restrictions to create a great links at Machrihanish Dunes? Plus, a pleasing focus on sustainability at The Wisley in England

72 Holing Out

Anthony Pioppi describes his attempt to build a nine hole course for his Connecticut hometown

Subscribe

Subscribe for a year (four issues):

UK delivery » £19.80
Europe delivery » £27.80
Rest of the world delivery » £35.80

» Call our subscriptions team on: +44 116 222 9900
» Complete the online form at: www.golfcoursearchitecture.net

If you would like to order copies of back issues please call us on +44 116 222 9900 or visit our back issues page on the website.