

Contents

April 2011

www.golfcoursearchitecture.net

08 Further improvements to the Askernish course in Scotland lead off this month's Tee Box. Plus: new courses planned in Australia, Honduras, India and Spain and some interesting research on contemporary attitudes to Alister MacKenzie's thirteen principles of design.

18 Alister MacKenzie's eleven week trip to Australia in 1926 still defines how the country thinks about golf design, says Anthony Pioppi.

26 Burnham & Berrow's famous Majuba Hill is this month's Lost Hole.

28 Michael Stachowicz contrasts the design principles behind national parks and Disney World and reckons golf has much to learn.

32 The restoration of Pinehurst No. 2 has lessons for everyone in the world of golf, says Adam Lawrence.

38 Water security is a vital issue for golf: we look at some of the ways courses are protecting themselves.

44 Golf in the Netherlands has continued to grow even when other countries have stagnated. Why?

48 We visit two of the projects competing to host the 2018 Ryder Cup.

52 Mining giant Mosaic's Streamsong resort will be something very different from the rest of Florida's golf offerings, says Adam Lawrence.

56 Paul O'Brien says the golf industry should get behind the proposal to St Andrews a World Heritage Site.

