
Contents

January 2012

www.golfcoursearchitecture.net

10 In this month's Tee Box: a report from GCA's seminar on golf development in North Africa, plus new courses in China, Vietnam, Australia and Kazakhstan, and a range of renovations from all over the world.

20 Adam Lawrence explains why Harry Colt is golf's most important designer.

26 Architect Robin Hiseman pays a visit to Sitwell Park in England in search of Alistair MacKenzie's most famous Lost Hole.

29 David Withers has just been appointed global president for turf equipment supplier Jacobsen. We get the lowdown on his plans.

30 Doing more with less: how architects can help golf clubs save money on maintenance.

36 Sam Ballard takes a look at a new golf facility in the Netherlands that's making extensive use of synthetic turf.

38 Luxury goods tycoon Massimo Ferragamo takes us round his new Tuscan playground, Castiglion del Bosco.

42 We examine Scottish designer Ken Moodie's restoration work at Moortown, Alistair MacKenzie's second course.

44 De Turfvaert is a low-budget course in the Netherlands that's showing how new courses can be both popular and profitable. We visit and talk to architect Frank Pont.

46 Jon Ingleton pays a visit to the renovated Dorado Beach resort in Puerto Rico.

48 Why advances in club and ball technology are the wrong route for golf to take.

